

Dad might have the newest driver, but does he have the right shaft? If he doesn't, he's missing out on Tour-like performance. Consider one of these three premium offerings that will complement his latest big stick:

The Tour AD DJ ($420) from Graphite Design has nanomaterial technology in its tip section that helps produce more distance while maintaining optimal launch and spin. UST Mamiya's Atlas-T2 ($399) features reduced ply inserts and maximized full-length layers that create a balance between torque and flex for more efficient shaft loading, while the 47-inch Mitsubishi Rayon's Bassara Wyvern ($350) helps you increase your driving distance by maximizing clubhead speed. For more information, visit their websites: gdintl.com, ustmamiya.com and mitsubishirayongolf.com.

SRIXON Z-STAR ▲

If Dad's a tinkerer, he'll love Srixon's new Z-Star 3-wood ($249). The classic-looking fairway metal comes in two lofts (15° and 18°) and has an adjustable hosel so you can alter its clubface angle and lie configurations for a true, custom fit—on the fly. srixon.com

Tour AD DJ-6x

ACCURACY & PERFORMANCE • G.D. GRAPHITE DESIGN

DJ-6x

UST Mamiya

ATLAS-T2

International Series - LEI2006

$200-$299

100 YARDS WIN THIS!

◀ CLEVELAND XL 270

Someone you know looking for an extra few yards off the tee? Who isn't? Cleveland's new all-titanium Launcher XL270 driver ($299) was optimized with Right Weight tech, meaning it's amazingly light and perfectly balanced so it doesn't feel too light. Weighs an impressively featherweight 270 grams and launches the ball a mile. clevelandgolf.com

ALDILA RIP ▲

Here's another shaft offering, but one that's priced for less than $300. The Aldila RIP's new Beta ($299) version has a slightly softer tip flex than the original RIP for a slightly higher launch and more spin. aldila.com

FUJIKURA BLUR ▲

Fujikura's new lightweight Blur ($299) shaft comes in three models and was built for golfers who want a light but very durable shaft. fujikuragolf.com

◀ PIRETTI GOLF

The classy-looking, well-balanced Cottonwood II ($265) from Piretti Golf was milled from a solid billet of 15L17 carbon steel. pirettigolf.com

